“What happened? You were supposed to come to India only after 10 days...” Meena was surprised.

Meena was in for a shock when she listened to her husband as he explained: “Yes I was to come back only after 10 days. But yesterday as I was walking in the underground metro station in Poland, I was way-laid by 4 gun toting/wielding miscreants. They wanted to have my wallet. Realising that I was alone with nobody to shout out for help, I decided to play very safe and not get into any argument. I gave my wallet and wristwatch. They checked what was inside the wallet. Satisfied, they took away my belongings and the wallet and all the money it had. It is my good sense that knowing the reputation of the locality I had stacked away some money into my under garments as also my passport and ticket. That these miscreants did not notice.”

“After they turned and fled, I looked around. Still there was nobody in the vicinity. I walked away in the opposite direction as fast as I could.”

Meena was too shocked to respond but as she held onto the receiver she asked “Have you been bruised or wounded?”

“Thank God, no. I was not physically attacked. Had I resisted I might have been beaten up” he continued.

Meena was relieved.

“ I realised that the only sensible thing for me to do was to catch the flight back with whatever money I had. I preponed my ticket and somehow managed to reach the airport and take the flight. I am safe in Delhi now. I will reach Chennai soon tonight.”

This was too much of a shock for Meena. Until she saw her husband back home she was in no mood to think of anything else. It was with much relief for her that a few hours later her husband landed at Chennai safe and sound and reached the house.

The memory of the visit to Guruji’s house was lost in the medley and remained buried for the next few days in the hustle and bustle of day-to-day life.

Meanwhile, the child’s health improved very fast without any signs of a major ailment. As Guruji had predicted, the condition of the child that once had shocked the family, never again manifested.

As life started settling down to its normal pattern, in one of her quieter moods, Meena did run over the memories of her visit to Guruji and all that He had said. Suddenly for a moment, Meena stopped in her thoughts. She sensed something incongruous – had not Guruji mentioned that there was no danger to the life? Whose life? Was it with reference to the child? Even on that day she had dismissed this possibility. In retrospect the child never looked like he had a life-threatening ailment. And yet such a statement coming from Guruji may have an import beyond the obvious she thought. Her memory was sharp enough to make her connect the statement with His earlier question “What is your husband doing...?”

Meena worked backward. What day had she visited Guruji? Where was her husband on that day?

She checked. And lo and behold! That was exactly the time when her husband had been accosted. “There is no danger to the life” Guruji with His eyes closed was visualising what was going on at the underground Poland metro station and reported this without even mentioning that He was referring to her husband.

We are of the view that Guruji would have actually gone a step further. When Guruji in His vision saw the impending threat to the husband, He would have generated a protection to the husband. He would have also entered the minds of the assailants and instructed them not to cause any injury.

There are miracles how He used a nearby buffalo to come to the rescue of a girl, there is the unforgettable Baroda railway station master's daughter incident, the case of the child who did not return home from school, a girl about to be married who was abducted, the protection to a child playing in a snake-infested neighbourhood, the help to a girl in a park when twilight suddenly descended and she felt scared being all alone, and several, several more.

We could do a compilation of all His miracles into a book. Such a book may serve a variety of causes at a later date-right from the nanny telling 'Guruji stories' to the grandchild to make him eat his food or put him to sleep, to a spiritual act of generating a strong deep faith in devotees that here is a person who lived for others.

These great souls never proclaim what they do. They avoid publicity. As can be seen in the above episode, Guruji never mentioned to Meena He was helping her husband. This awareness could have been completely missed but for a sharp Meena who retrospected. Guruji's trademarks have always been – to work silently, unnoticed, for the devotee!
